

Jessica Simpson's Nashville Shopping Spree

COURTESY H AUDREY; MICHAEL CAULFIELD/WIREIMAGE

She might be busy working on her new country album in Nashville, but Jessica Simpson still had some time to shop. The Texas native and her BFF CaCee Cobb spent Friday afternoon hanging in one of their favorite haunts, H. Audrey, a high-end designer boutique and rock-n-roll art gallery. But for Jessica, it's not just about the trendy boutique's clothes. The pet-loving singer tells PEOPLE, "H. Audrey is dog-friendly! Daisy shops with me and plays with [the owner] Holly's dog, Alfie. The store has everything from Alexander McQueen to Golden Goose cowboy boots — which are perfect for Nashville. I also love the music gallery upstairs. I bought a Bruce Springsteen pic I love." Simpson isn't the only country cooner who frequents H. Audrey. Sheryl Crow, Faith Hill, Carrie Underwood and LeAnn Rimes are also regulars. On this trip, a casually-clad Simpson stocked up on designer duds and even had time to take some photos with fans. Jessica left with Linda Farrow vintage aviator shades, $290, a Gryphon brown leather jacket, $920 — which she wore out of the store — a Helmut Lang hooded leather vest, $795, a black Iro dress ($260), Rory Becca gray and white striped top, $258 — and her Bruce Springsteen print.